

Kirstine Sinclair
Institut for Kultur- og Sprogvidenskaber
Center for Mellemøststudier
E-mail: sinclair@sdu.dk
Telefon: +4565502249

Teaching CV

Education

2015 PhD Supervision Training Programme, University of Southern Denmark

2013 Lecturer Training Programme, University of Southern Denmark

Experience

Teaching

2005 - Teaching at BA and MA level in Danish and English in a number of courses as part of the following degree programmes: MA in Middle East Studies, BA and MA in History, MA in Globalization and Integration, BA in Islam and Politics. Most recently, I have taught courses on culture and religion in the Middle East, on the history of research on the Middle East as well as elective courses on the Global War on Terror and Cultural Encounters. I also teach methodology courses to History students.

Supervision

2015 - Supervision of three PhD projects on role models in integration work and subjectivity formation (secondary supervisor), right wing and Islamist activism in the Netherlands (secondary supervisor) and on refugees in the Danish asylum system (primary supervisor).

2011 - Supervision of approximately 35 MA theses on a broad range of topics from the history and ideology of terror organisations, Islamism, radicalization processes and fear culture to European integration policies, youth culture and urban development projects in the Middle East and Danish Muslim youth activism.

Administration and programme development

2018 - Member of the study board for History, Classical Studies, Maritime Archeology and Middle East Studies

2015 - 2017 Head of the study board for Middle East Studies

2015 - Head of Studies for Middle East Studies

2008 - Development of courses and revision of degree programmes connected to Middle East Studies and previous programmes such as Immigration Studies (BA) and MA of Globalization and Integration.