Profile

I teach Anglophone literature and culture across different periods and genres. My focus lies on contemporary American texts, encompassing fiction, life writing, films and television series. My teaching is discussion-oriented, supported with mini-lectures, group activities and, sometimes, reflective writing prompts. In my teaching, I strive to provide a space for student-centered learning that foregrounds a diversity of viewpoints and relevance – in terms of social, cultural or personal relevance as well as applicability to other professional contexts. In order to create a productive learning environment, I try to model an open, welcoming and curiosity-driven atmosphere in class, in which all participants feel encouraged to share their thoughts and insights.

Formal pedagogical education

As a postdoctoral researcher, I worked at the Center of Quality Assurance and Development at Johannes Gutenberg-University Mainz, where I was part of the Higher Education Division. I supported the program “Collegial Coaching” by developing workshops for the Higher Education training certificate (2013-2014). I completed the lecturer training program of the Federal State Rhineland-Palatinate, Germany, in 2016. In addition, I received a certificate from the Center for Narrative Practice for a year-long continuing training in Boston (2015-2016), and I am currently working towards my accreditation as a trainer in the “Conversations Inviting Change” program of the Association of Narrative Practice in Healthcare (ANPH).

Supervision

I supervise BA and MA theses on the areas of American literature (19th to 21st century) and Anglophone literature more generally. Topics include: literature and health, illness, disability, older age and aging, Bildungsroman and coming of age, uses of literature, popular culture, film and TV series, American culture, women writers.

Curriculum development

I have independently designed and run elective classes at BA level at various universities (Mainz, Columbia, Mannheim, Odense). Topics include: Patient Narratives In and Beyond American Literature; Science, Medicine and Literature: The Female Body in North-American Nineteenth and Twentieth Century Fiction and Nonfiction; Mad Men, Mad Women and Desperate Housewives; Willa Cather; Life Writing; Coming of Age; American Cinema; From Hollywood to Bollywood; Adaptations. I am contributing to the development of the course plans in the English BA program and American studies program.

I am co-coordinator of the Narrative Medicine program at SUND / Det Sundhedsvidenskabelige Fakultet.
