Teaching portfolio

Teaching philosophy

In my view, good teaching is produced when the teacher and the students are well-prepared. Also, the teacher should be able to explain things in different ways. It is best to activate the students as much as possible. The activation of students can happen in a number of ways, e.g. by encouraging questions and answers during classes, having students discuss among themselves and by making the students work with their own projects.

Teaching Methods

I have primarily given lectures for large student groups and in this connection I have used the following methods: PowerPoint presentations, traditional blackboard teaching to supplement the PowerPoint presentations, dialogue with the students, 1-minute summing meetings, 10-minute exercises during lectures, use of response systems (ShakeSpeak/Poll Everywhere) and the use of Q&A and discussion board facilities placed in the students' electronic blackboard system. During the Corona Crisis, I held my lectures online using Zoom, and I supervised my students using Microsoft Teams and Skype for Business.

Supervision

I supervise students attending the bachelor programme Sociologi og Kulturanalyse and students attending the master programme Cultural Sociology. I supervise in connection with semester projects, final bachelor tasks and the master thesis.
