CV (very brief)

Born 1961. MA, comparative religion 1989, Ph.D. 1993. Various positions at the University of Copenhagen 1990-2013. Tenured since 2001. University of Southern Denmark 2013-present. Guest Professor, Vytautas Magnus University, Lithuania 2011-present. I am also Research Professor at the Museum Lolland Falster 2020-present. Guest lecturer and committee member at more than 25 universities etc. worldwide.

Areas of research

I have three main areas of research: 1) New religions and religious movements, 2) Religion among hunter-gatherers and other indigenous peoples and 3) Religion in the mesolithic and neolithic. However, my work is always based on comparative methods which means that I, in effect, am dealing with a vast array of religions and religious phenomena, past and present.

Publications

Please see my bibliography. New books and articles are always in the pipeline.

Teaching and supervision

My courses cover several aspects of the curriculum, mostly, however, disciplines of comparative religion. I offer supervision in (almost) all areas.
