My profile

My profile is based on a solid background in clinical nursing, in teaching and in research. In 2014 I became head of the new master program in clinical nursing at University of Southern Denmark, in that connection I also got experience in leadership.

My research focuses on vulnerability, intercultural nursing, ageing, and patients' everyday life with chronic illnesses and diseases. I conduct a Practice lead research approach and take patients narratives, everyday life, communication and culture into account. The research involves qualitative as well as quantitative methods for identifying and developing practice-oriented nursing and treatment for vulnerable patients. The research involves national as well as international collaborators.
