Experience as teacher, examiner and supervisor

I have since 2014 taught at the Medicine study module K7 and K3 . I have since the autumn of 2015 taught biomechanics study of dermatology at the course general Diagnostics

Tutor on the course Research Training for specialists in general medicine since autumn 2014

Methods, materials and tools

I use interactive teaching with cases as illustrations . We also aim at some modules too involve "real" patients in our teaching . Where it is'n possible with "real" patients we use podcast to illustrate clinical situations and communication.

Educational development

We are continuously working to develop teaching materials and cases. We aim to that cases are clinical relevant. We continually work with our study guides. We plan meetings in teaching teams within each module before and after the module at each semester.
